Honoring Service Preserving Legacy

This Veterans Day, we're reminded that every document, photograph, and medal tells a story of dedication and courage. These pieces of history deserve the same care and respect as the legacy they represent.

Tell Their Story

Expertly restored and archivally framed, this military portrait is preserved to museum standards. The handcrafted frame was designed to honor service and sacrifice, ensuring that the memory and legacy of those who served are presented with the dignity they deserve.

Preserve What Time Cannot Replace

This extraordinary note, once tucked inside a flute for over 150 years, reveals the identity of its owner—a soldier who fell at the Battle of Chickamauga, September 18–20, 1863. Our conservation experts carefully retrieved the delicate, fragmented document and meticulously reassembled it using archival techniques, preserving a tangible piece of history that might otherwise have been lost to time.

Legacy in Every Detail

From traditional profiles to custom designs inspired by military insignia and craftsmanship, each frame is made to honor both the individual and their story.

Built to Honor a Life of Service

The restoration of this Soldier's Memorial began with the careful cleaning and stabilization of its timeworn paper, removing years of discoloration and revealing the original colors once more. Preserved to museum standards and presented in a hand-crafted frame seen below, this piece now stands as a lasting tribute to a life dedicated to service and sacrifice.

Preserve Their Legacy

Every document, photograph, and artifact tells a story worth safeguarding. Our conservation experts specialize in restoring and framing pieces of history with the utmost care, ensuring that each one endures for generations to come. Let us help you preserve the legacy of service in your own family.
